Statement by Local Food Administrator.

It has come to my notice that many people do not believe the food administration laws are real laws, and therefore need not fear prosecution in case they willfully violate the law. I find that this is chiefly due to the fact that there have been very few prosecutions made. The question was discussed with the county food administrator at a meeting held at Orleans Monday, when he explained that notwithstanding the fact that he had no cases of prosecution in hand the law existed nevertheless and violations were punishable by both fine and imprisonment for hoarding a quantity of food in excess of the amount allowed by law, and the maximum fine was $5000 or three years' imprisonment or both. But that it is not the intention of the government to be over-severe is evidenced by the fact that so few are being prosecuted when so many violators are known. It is the advice of the administrator that all those having more than one barrel of flour or 100 pounds of sugar on hand to advise the local food administrator and avoid, if possible, the consequences which may come if these steps are not taken, in the near future.

NOT TO FIX MAPLE PRICE.

Rumor Maple Sugar Price to be Fixed by Hoover is Groundless.

The persistent rumor that the price of maple sugar was to be fixed by National Food Administrator Hoover has been nailed as untrue. Ray P. Webster of Barton, believing the reports would curtail the production of the maple crop in this section, took the matter direct to Hoover at Washington in a letter from which we quote:

Barton, Vt., Feb. 13, 1918.
Herbert B. Hoover,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:—
There is a report circulating in this vicinity that the U. S. Food Administration intended to limit the price of maple sugar the coming season to about the price of cane sugar.

While there is probably no truth in this rumor, still it will curtail production in this section if this report is allowed to circulate. The maple sugar makers are going to have a hard time getting help, some are not going to tap their trees anyway, but I think you will agree that if this report is truthless it ought to be known at once, and I will undertake to advertise to that effect if you will give me permission.

This is one of the best sections of the country for this industry. This matter ought to be cleared up for the good of our whole country as well as this locality.

Very respectfully,
Ray P. Webster.

In reply Mr. Webster received the following letter which clears up the whole situation.

United States Food Administration
Washington, D. C.
February 16, 1918.

Mr. Ray P. Webster,
Barton, Vt.

Dear Sir:—
Referring to your favor of the 13th instant, beg to say we have no knowledge that the Food Administration has in mind limiting the price of maple sugar, and feel satisfied that the report that has reached you of such being the intention is an error.

We are enclosing herewith, copy of a pamphlet that is just being sent out by the Administration, which is an appeal to everyone to increase the production of maple sugar.

Yours truly,
U. S. FOOD ADMINISTRATION.
The state food administrator, J. C. Cushing of St. Albans, has also stated that there would be no price fixing on maple goods.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Clogston observed their 51st wedding anniversary today. Mr. Clogston, who has been very ill for several weeks is now gaining.

Mrs. Allen Gilmour, who has been in ill health for some time, has gone to Nashua, N. H., where she entered St. Joseph's hospital for treatment. Mr. Gilmour accompanied her.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. W. H. Drant, which occurred at her home in Newbury last week. Mr. and Mrs. Drant with their family lived here several years ago.

Roy Cheney, formerly a clerk in the McLellan store, who is stationed at Camp Jackson, S. C., is enjoying a few days' furlough in town, a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McLellan.

C. E. Sisco and family are receiving very interesting letters from his daughter, Mrs. Edna Atkins, who with her husband and children sailed with a party of other missionaries for a station in Natal, South Africa. She describes the boat, life on board, stopping places and scenery along the route, which are good lessons in geography.

The Monitor's recent mention of some of Barton's old people brings to our attention the fact that Reuben Christie of the Glover road will be 92 in April and is frequently seen in town and will probably be out to town meeting as is his custom. There are four generations living in his family. Another of our most aged persons is Louisa, widow of the late Joseph Hagar. Other aged ones are Mrs. Edward Hitchcock and Mrs. Lucretia Frost.

We are pleased to note the success of one of our Barton girls, Miss Ida Wright, who graduated from Barton academy in '16, and who has for several months been taking a course in a school for secretaries in Boston. She recently received an appointment to teach bookkeeping, English and stenotype in a school in Providence, R. I. at the same time being privileged to continue her course in Boston. This speaks very highly of the ability of Miss Wright.

John M. Comstock of Chelsea, a Vermont historian, writes the editor that the death of Thomas Baker in Fargo, N. D., formerly of this place and previously reported in these columns, who represented this town in the legislatures of 1857-8, leaves but two survivors of the Vermont legislatures prior to 1860 and that these two are Senator Geo. F. Edmunds of California, who represented Burlington in 1854-5-6-7-8-9, and Stanley W. Smith, who represented Addison in 1858-9.

The Woman's Literary club met with the Afternoon Study club at their regular meeting Feb. 14th at the home of Mrs. H. W. Carter, 38 ladies were present. A very enjoyable program was given: Reading, "The Four-Cornered Bluff," A Star-Spangled Love Story," Mrs. Batchelder; English marching song, "Tipperary," Victrola; reading, "Our

A Great Play by Great Players.

Not in recent years has there been played in Barton anything to compare with the Ben Greets Players in "The Merchant of Venice," as given at Seaver's hall Friday evening. Only a combination of favorable circumstances made it possible for the improvement club to present this number in its course, as the Ben Greets are a company of highly-paid actors who visit only larger places with their Shakespearean productions.

Erske Sanford as Shylock, the Jew, was easily the star of the cast, though Grace Halsey Mills as Portia the rich heiress, was a close second and the supporting characters were of a high order.

As usual in presenting Shakespeare's plays, little or no scenery was used, which the more emphasizes the characters themselves. The story of "The Merchant of Venice" is too well known to review here, but after Antonio had bound himself to Shylock for a loan to Bassanio, suitor to Portia, the court scene in which Shylock demands a pound of flesh from the breast of Antonio, and receives judgment from the court that such is his due, is a climax of suspense. Then the judge (Portia in disguise) decrees that while Shylock is entitled to the pound of flesh according to the bond, should he cut "the twentieth part of one poor scruple," more or less than the pound he (Shylock) shall lose his life. Then Shylock with his mocking of Shylock's commendation of the judge's previous decree brings laughter and broken man, the victim of his own mercilessness and grasping. Of course Portia and Bassanio are married.

Certainly the Ben Greets have made a place for themselves in the hearts of Barton's people.

The Flag and I.

While home I stayed
And with it played,
At dress parade,
I'm sure I prayed:

"Dear Flag, so free,
Float over me
In majesty,
For I love thee."

But since I've thought
Of battles fought,
That Freedom brought
And changed my lot,

Those colors three
Are calls to me,
To loyal be,
To Liberty.

Those stripes of Red
Recall the blood
Who fought and bled
For Flag o'er head.

The stripes of White
Call me to fight
With mind and might
For what is right.

That field of Blue
Links Heaven, too,
With all we do,
To keep us true.

Each star a state,
A Nation great,
On God we wait,
Who holds our fate.

Let all men plead
For peace, indeed,
And no man bleed
In war for greed.

But should need be,
To fight for thee,
TO KEEP MEN FREE,
Just call for me.

Henry F. Ryther,
Orleans County, Vt.

House," by Joseph C. Lincoln, Mrs. Florence Pierce; French song, "Joan of Arc," Mrs. Ruth Webster; poem, "Good Mothers," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Mrs. Carter; American flag song, "Brave, Pure and True," Mrs. Ruth Webster; reading, "The Perfect Tribute," by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, Mrs. Mabel Thompson. The collection for the Red Cross benefitted to $10.25. The meeting closed with the singing of "America" after which delicious refreshments were served.

COUNTY SENDS

SEVENTEEN VOLUNTEERS.

Leave for Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., Friday. Other Exemption Board News and Lists.

The following 17 Orleans county men leave St. Johnsbury Friday morning with other Vermont men who have volunteered, for Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., where they will go into training, probably with the Vermont regiment stationed there.

Some of these men have just passed the physical test in class one while others have not yet been called before the board, but preferred to make voluntary enlistment and go into the Vermont company if possible. While drafted men may be sent anywhere, until the Vermont regiment is full volunteers will be sent there. Another advantage of the volunteer is $10 extra pay from the state.

The following men were voluntarily inducted into military service up to Feb. 20 and leave St. Johnsbury Friday morning for Camp Greene: Oscar I. Sykes, Morgan; Gordon B. Sykes, Morgan; Maurice C. Sweetland, Greensboro; Elmer Edwin Maurer, Greensboro; Abner J. Mason, Albany; Albert Sevigny, Troy; Clyde E. Bosley, North Troy; Ervin Bosley, North Troy; Edward Peter Santaw, North Troy; George R. Jenkins, North Troy; Bond Richards, Newport; Ernest Frank Stearns, Holland; Harold C. Findlay, Newport; Charles F. Poggio, Newport; Ernest Stearns, Holland; Fred D. Canel, Orleans; Levi Merritt Wills, Westmore.

The following men passed the physical examination Feb. 12 and 13: Euclide Fontaine, Troy; Harold George Findlay, Newport; Thomas Tetreault, Holland; Charles Felix Poggio, Newport; Floyd M. Fox, Orleans; George Albert Alger, Barton; Harold Chase Jenne, Derby; Alvin Berry Spiller, Morgan; George T. Blodgett, Windsor, Conn.; Oscar W. Miles, West Glover; Frank George Thompson, North Rochester, N. H.; Harold D. Baker, West Glover; Howard O. Woodbury, Barton; Walter Wright Buckley, Barton; Albert Sevigny, Troy; John Joseph Morley, N. Craftsbury; John Glen Dixon, Greensboro Bend; Fred D. Canel, Orleans; Clarence E. Dewing, West Glover; Moses Wilfred Pepin, Newport; Harvey Frank Martin, Westfield; Cyril Reading Darby, Derby Line; Harry C. Brigham, Orleans; Raymond Marshall Daley, W. Derby; Ora Arthur Day, Newport; Theodore Patenaude, Westfield; Edward Clayton Storey, Newport; Oscar I. Sykes, Morgan; Oscar Hermon Jensen, E. Charleston; Clayton Charles St. Onge, Troy; Wesley C. Colby, Lyndonville; Howard Freeman Kennison, Irasburg; Walter Smith Kiser, Newport; Harold Horace Lapiere, West Derby; Harry A. Flanders, Orleans; Edward L. Blanchette, Greensboro; Lester N. Marshall, Littleton, N. H.; Edward Allen Puffer, St. Albans; Gordon B. Sykes, Morgan.

More than 100 class one men were before the board Tuesday and Wednesday for examination. One of the examining physicians states the rules governing examination and acceptances are changed by direction of federal authorities so often and to such an extent that their work is difficult.

Creamery Meeting.

The state department of agriculture in cooperation with the Orleans County Agricultural association has arranged a series of cooperative creamery meetings for Orleans county.

M. R. Tolstrup of St. Albans, the state marketing agent, V. R. Jones of St. Albans, creamery specialist, and either E. S. Brigham, state commissioner of agriculture, or J. G. Watson, field agent for the Ayshire Cattle club, will be the speakers. A very interesting and instructive program has been arranged. Many lantern slide views from all over the state will be used to show the work done by various cooperative dairy plants. It is well worth the time spent for anyone to attend one of these meetings.

Following is the schedule:

Thursday, Feb. 21, at Irasburg at 1.30 p.m. in town hall.

Friday, Feb. 22, at Newport, at 1.30 p.m. in school hall.

On Saturday afternoon a meeting will be held at the schoolhouse in Westfield to decide upon the question of a cooperative creamery in the Missisquoi valley. M. R. Tolstrup will speak at this meeting upon "Cooperative Creameries." The directors will also make a report.
